Ohio Guard To Pass In Review Saturday

CAMP GRAYLING — The 37th Infantry Division is scheduled to shine on Saturday when the Buckeye National Guard division stages its annual review.

The review is expected to be on the reviewing stand when the nearly 8,000 Ohio Guardsmen will be in review. The event is scheduled at 9:30 a. m. is open to the public.

Included in the list of generals headed to be present are Maj. Gen. Andrew Lath, commander of the 37th Army Corps, and three members of the 37th.

They are Maj. Gen. Robert S. Ogilvie, commander of the division during World War II; Maj. Gen. Lee M. Krueger, commander of the division during the Korean conflict; and Maj. Gen. Loren G. Vinson, the present commander.

Also present will be Brig. Gen. Herbert E. Englin, assistant division commander.

Also scheduled to fly in Saturday for the review are Maj. Gen. H. Zistel (retired), former chief of staff of the Ohio Air National Guard; Maj. Gen. Henderson B. Gen. Howard Haines, retired last year as 37th division artillery commander after serving the division for 37 years; and Brig. Gen. Cecil Whitcomb.

Also present will be Brig. Gen. Herbert E. Englin, assistant division commander.

and rushed them to nearby hospitals while other Guardsmen kept traffic moving.

Next week the entire division will move into the field — where nearly half of the Ohioans have been living since they arrived here — to take part in the company-sized maneuvers. During the period all units will live and operate in as near to combat conditions as possible.

Guerrilla forces will attempt to infiltrate lines, aircraft will make simulated attacks on convoys and the Buckeye will be subject to assaults 24 hours a day.

The 37th heads home Aug. 10.

Local Residents 'Stay Put' Longer

(Special to the Avalanche)

NEW YORK, July 23 — Residents of Crawford County stay put longer than those in most parts of the United States.

Because of their tendency to live in the same location for more years than is average, they are considered less transient than the majority of Americans.

The findings are from a report issued by the Department of Commerce, following a study it made of data gathered in connection with the 1960 census.

It shows that 2,534 residents of Crawford County were in the same houses that they had been living in five years before. This is exclusive of children under the age of five who have not yet had time to be very mobile.

Some 1,872 local people did move during the five-year period, the figures show. Of these, 747 merely changed locations within their own county. Another 1,125 came in from other areas to take up local residence.

How many might have left, on the other hand, to live elsewhere is not indicated.

What it boils down to is that only 42 out of every 100 people in Crawford County were living in different houses in 1960 than they had occupied in 1955.

This mobility rate, 42 percent, was lower than the rate reported for the United States as a whole. Nationally, 47 percent changed residence in the five-year period.

For the 37th Infantry Division, North Central States is 46 percent, and for the State of Michigan, 44 percent.

Various factors lead people to stay put, says the report. One is economic. If their source of livelihood dries up or their income drops and is no longer sufficient for their needs, they go elsewhere in search of work. Or a better opportunity presents itself in another neighborhood. So they move.

Sometimes the change is due to an increase or decrease in the size of the family, making a switch to other quarters desirable.

All in all, it is a rare individual who lives in the same house all his life.

In Crawford County, according to the report, only 370 people, 8 percent of the over-five population, still live in the houses in which they were born.

BAND CONCERT

The Ohio National Guard's 37th Infantry Division band will present a concert on the lawn of the Crawford County Court House this Saturday, August 4.

The concert will start at 2 p. m. and will last for about one hour.

son commander, and Brig. Gen. Walter H. Fiske, division artillery commander.

The reviewing party also may include members from half-way around the world. Tentatively scheduled to arrive Saturday morning is Air Commander Roberts of the Royal New Zealand Air Force.

Many of the generals were scheduled to attend the review last year, but bad weather forced their plane to turn back to Ohio and arrive within 30 miles of Grayling.

The review marks the half-way point to the intensive field training being conducted by the Ohio division.

Inspected this week was an evening live service from the camp to Grayling. The 37th is one of only two divisions in the nation which does not permit civilian automobiles to be taken to summer camp training sessions.

In the last two years division personnel have had difficulty getting to the training site, however, because the division's bases are so near to each other, as soon as to town and back during the evening hours.

The scheduled trips will be increased over the weekend to allow the National Guard an opportunity to visit in town.

During a briefing for nearly 30 regular Army evaluators, who are grading all phases of the training and operations of the division, it was determined that the 1,650 vehicles of the 37th made the trip to Camp Grayling with only two minor accidents and no one was injured. The vehicles logged a total of 64,000 miles.

The Ordnance helped authorities near Standish last weekend during the trip here in a fatal accident involving civilian vehicles.

The headquarters of the 2nd Battalion of the 135th Cavalry, from Toledo, Ohio, came upon an auto accident only moments after it occurred. One person was dead but the battalion surgeon and other medical personnel in the unit accompanied to the injured.

Crawford County Romney Volunteers

The latest wrinkle in the Crawford County Romney Volunteers is a request that we organize Romney Girls and Romney Boys. These volunteers will act as aids to Mr. and Mrs. Romney when they are in the area, pass out advance literature, carry banners, apply car stickers for those desiring them, appear at all local public functions to acquaint the public with Mr. Romney and his program for the improvement of Michigan government. They will act as ushers, coat check or any other capacity required at political rallies or other local functions.

These people are not recruited to look pretty and useless. All volunteers will be required to be informed young people, neatly attired in the uniform of the volunteer, and enthusiastic about doing something to straighten out our mess in Michigan and determined to see that George Romney, the man for the job, is elected to that responsibility.

If you are a young man or woman between the ages of 18 and 30 years, married or single, interested in volunteering your services to electing George Romney our next Governor, please call Mrs. Bernard Fowler, DI 8-5156. Mr. Romney wants to take an active part in your political affiliation. If you are a young man or woman between the ages of 18 and 30 years, married or single, interested in volunteering your services to electing George Romney our next Governor, please call Mrs. Bernard Fowler, DI 8-5156 for further information.

Letters To The Editor

Editor's Note—Larry Haas, Grayling resident and Grayling High School graduate, was selected by the board of directors of the "Sailor of the Month" ship, the U.S.S. William M. Wood (DDR-715). The following letter to his mother and a letter to him from the ship's commander tells of the honor.

Mrs. Nellie Haas

Box 210

Grayling, Michigan

Dear Mrs. Haas:

As a "Sailor of the Month" program whereby a committee composed of various officers and senior petty officers selects each month that WOOD sailor whom they feel best represents what every sailor should be. The specific areas given consideration are the following: outstanding work in his assigned duties and responsibilities, watch standing, performance, conduct on board and ashore, daily personal appearance, contribution to morale, demonstrated desire to advance himself and leadership qualities.

I am pleased to inform you that your son has been selected as the fifth WOOD "Sailor of the Month". He has been presented with a "Sailor of the Month" certificate, his name will be placed on a permanent plaque on our quarterdeck, a special cake will be baked in his honor, he will receive a $10 credit at the ship's store, and a commendation entry, a copy of which is enclosed, has been placed in his service record.

I want to take this opportunity to extend my congratulations to you on this occasion. It is most gratifying to have Larry and men of his caliber serving with me on this fine ship. Larry has always acted in the highest tradition of the naval service and is a credit to his ship. We can all be justly proud of him.

Our Friends Can Bury Us . . .

The United States is in greater danger of being buried economically by its friends than by its enemies. That is the view of an executive of an American manufacturing company which operates on an international scale.

The story is told by the fact that productivity in many foreign countries is rising more rapidly than here at home. For example, productivity increases from 1953 to 1960 ranged from a low of 15 per cent in the United States to 29 per cent in Great Britain, 53 per cent in West Germany, 58 per cent in Italy and 71 per cent in Japan—due, in large part at least, to imaginative automation.

The word automation is comparatively new, but the principle is ancient. It simply means finding ways to do the same job, or a better job, at less cost, and in a shorter period of time. The concern which fails to meet the competition, whether it operates in domestic markets or world markets, sees its trade go elsewhere—and that's that.

The labor unions which oppose automation, on the grounds that it would destroy jobs, are taking a potentially suicidal position. In the long run, automation, whatever it has been called, has always created more, better-paying jobs. Then, beyond that, if resistance to automation makes it impossible for American production to compete in the surging world markets, what will be the fate of our employment?

Modernization and extension of facilities at the State fish hatchery located here is making steady progress, according to the fish division of the Michigan Department of Conservation. Extensions of the rearing pond system, and modernization of ponds is gradually completed. A new pump house and equipment are among the improvements being made. This is part of a program of extensions and improvements which has been carried on for several years with the aid of CCC and WPA labor. The pump house encloses a water wheel of modern design to be driven by stream flow, which operates a pump for delivering water from a shallow well to the hatchery. The pump has been in service for more than 25 years. The pump house is set on a hill and is constructed of limestone quarried in northern Michigan and transported by CCC labor.

A daring robbery occurred on Thursday afternoon at about 5 o'clock when John R. Keating, a traveling salesman for a jewelry supply company of Chicago, helped himself to two diamond rings at the Andrew Peterson jewelry store. During the afternoon Mr. Peterson had purchased an amount of goods from Mr. Keating for his store, and upon returning from supper missed the rings, which were valued at about $845. That day being a very quiet one, Mr. Peterson was very reluctant to believe that Mr. Keating took them. However, Sheriff Cody was put on his trail and the rings were found on Mr. Keating himself.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

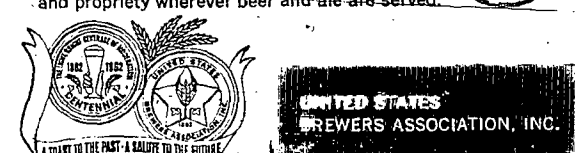

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN MICHIGAN, farmers were harvesting badly needed grain for the Union armies. Michigan was one of the Union's important suppliers during the Civil War. And, after the war, the State's grain farmers found a good market with Michigan's pioneer brewers.

For even then, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for folks in Michigan and a good living for the many employees and suppliers of the Brewing Industry.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

DRIVERS WHO FEAR ACCIDENTS MOST

90 percent of the nation's drivers, the threat of an accident involving bodily injury holds a danger much greater than the possible injury itself. That's the fear of what may happen to them at the hospital.

There are motorists who suffer from disabilities requiring special drugs in emergencies. More than ten million cardiac cases, three million diabetes, and a half million epileptics and millions of others.

Rendered unconscious by an injury, a cardiac patient, for instance, could die from lack of special drugs to treat his condition. Diabetes could go into insulin shock and epileptics become seriously ill. One in every 10,000 males is born an incurable hemophiliac who could bleed to death from a slight wound.

So that the public and medical attendants will know of a driver's special disabilities, a unique organization exists to protect motorists suffering from such ailments. It is called the Modic-Alori Foundation and is a non-profit organization that provides its members with metal wrist bracelet designating their ailment.

The bracelet contains the serial number of each member relating to a file at the foundation's headquarters in Turlock, California, where 24-hourly phone service will accept emergency collect calls. Individuals membership is for life and costs only $5.

If you should encounter a Modic-Alori bracelet on an unconscious accident victim, be sure to heed its warning. If you unsure what to do, bring the bracelet to the attention of medical personnel or contact the Modic-Alori organization for guidance.
